Whig & Courier.

JOHN H. LYNDE, - - PROPRIETOR.

THURSDAY, MAY 13, 1869.

The Portland Press obstinately declines to forego its first choice for Democratic candidate for Governor, notwithstanding his "base ingratitude" to his radical organ. The Press is stone blind in its championship of Col Smart; were we in the habit of dinging epithets at our radical friends, we should say it amount to Tom Boylem. Its attempts to shift the responsibility for the issue upon the Whig are lame. A broken oover will not answer for a smoky stove. In the interest of pure Democracy, as well as for the welfare of our own party, we have discouraged the nomination of the Press candidate. Do you imagine the Democratic party will so stultify itself as to nominate a man who has ever voted a Union ticket or scratched the Democratic slate? Do you suppose we can give up all hope of retaining any man who is or ever has been tainted with liberal principles? We know the Democrats who have stood fire through the trying times of loyal epidemics are rare fowls. Bangor we believe contains about a dozen of the pleasant metal and from that number the Democratic Convention will no doubt choose one, the back of whose coat contains no Democratic ballot holes.

In relation to the resolutions of the April session of the Sons of Temperance in favor of separate political action in a certain contingency, one of their number writes the Kennebec Journal: "Perhaps the gentlemen who now assume to control this organization, can explain how it is that they attempt to make a Political Organization of an Order, which by its organic law is prohibited from doing so. As a member of the Order of long standing, and acquainted somewhat extensively with its members, I say any attempt to introduce politics into this reformatory Institution, by whomsoever it is made, will be, frowned down, by the mass of its members."

We presume that it will not be necessary to appeal to the organic law of the organization, for we believe a great majority of its members are free to acknowledge that independent action can accomplish nothing, and will jeopardize what we have already secured

It appears that Boston is attempting to block the way to us through lies by way of the Portland & Rochester and Nashua & Rochester Railroads to New York. The proposed loan of the credit of the city of Nashua, N. H., to the Rochester & Nashua railroad has been temporarily defeated by the Aldermen of the city, though the people pronounced emphatically in its favor. The opposition was inspired by Boston interest, which do not care to have Boston connected by rail with Portland. Boston is thus only furnishing an additional argument for the road, and no doubt we will finally succeed, and the people of Nashua will do their share towards forwarding it.

The Machias Union, if it possessed ordinary gratitude, would squarely acknowledge that the reason the Washington authorities extend the time for the opening of Reciprocity is in the hope they have for the Democratic party.

What is fame? Even the Hon. John M. Binckley, late Assistant Attorney General of the United States, a fast friend of A. J., the bosom companion of the whiskey ring, the valiant hero of several pugilistic encounters, has set beyond the horizon of fame. A "personal friend" advertises in the N. Y. Herald for his address. When Binkley thus subsides, what hope is there for Block Pounder or Sprague?

ANOTHER UNION MAN ASSASSINATED. Dispatches from Atlanta, Ga., the 11th informs us that Hon. Joseph Adkins, Republican Senator from the 7th District, was assassinated in Warren county, that State, on Monday. He had been frequently warned not to enter the county, although it was his birth place and his home through life. Paying no attention to the threatsin started for home a few days ago. On arriving at Dearing Station, eight miles from his residence, his private carriage met him and it is proceeded homewards. When within two miles of his house a man issued from the woods close by and was saluted by Mr. Adkins, who recognized him. The salutation was instantly returned and was accompanied by the crawling and presenting of the assassins pistol. Top follow took deliberate aim and pierced the Senator's heart with the ball, killing him instantly. Mr. Adkins was a staunch Republican, had been many years a Baptist Minister and bore an irreproachable private character. Political animosity alone could have prompted his assassination. He was one of the delegation of the Georgians who visited President Grant some weeks ago to urge a fully loyal reconstruction for his State. He is the second Republican member of the Legislature and second of that delegation murdered since the adjournment of Congress. He, like Dr. Ayer, has "perished by the wayside," as was recommended by one of the Southern newspapers.

THE ELECTION IN PROVIDENCE. The election in Providence to-day, for Mayor, is the most exciting ever held in that city. Money is being spent free as water, and large bets are made on either side. The Boston Journal correspondent says, "All the registry lists, dead and alive, have been paid up, and a living representative for every dead man will be found." Pools were sold last night, into which $10,000 were put. They sold at $100 for Clarke, to $20 for Doyle, (Sprague's man.)

Conversations of newspaper correspondents with public men are becoming nuisances. So says the Boston Post, and if Sprague hadn't gone over to the Democracy, we should have said it is several upon him.

Some fifteen hundred people attended the Riverside Park, Cambridge, Tuesday afternoon, to witness the contest between Walter Brown, the champion velocipede, and the horse John Stewart—the man to go five miles and the horse in harness, 10 miles. The race was won by Brown, who completed his five miles in 20:20, the horse doing nine miles in 29:36. Brown's best mile was done in 4.29 and Stewart's in 3.47½. After the first mile, Brown made the others in 6.22, 6.44, 6.29 and 5.15.

President Grant, part of his Cabinet and General Sherman are expected to attend the Peace Festival in June.

DIRECT TRADE BETWEEN LOWELL AND CHINA. The Lowell Courier of Monday says: "One hundred bales of cloth are to be forwarded from this city to-day direct to China, the goods having been purchased of the Lawrence Manufacturing Company at their works here by a firm in Boston, and consigned to a shipping firm doing business in New York. This is, we believe, the first case of goods purchased in this city for immediate exportation."

An American's View of the Situation in Cuba.

An American resident in Havana under date of May 1, writes a New York paper that Gen. Marmol has under his command from 1,000 to 1,500 colored troops, and is running over the Santiago de Cuba district, firing all the estates of the Spaniards. The Government is unable to spare the necessary troops to combat him successfully. When its troops approach any place the Cubans immediately retire or disperse themselves, so that it is almost impossible to find them. When, however, the regulars march about in small squads, the rebels manage to come up with them in some mountainous pass or thickly wooded turn of the road, and occasionally make sad havoc in their ranks. This is the kind of warfare that cost the Spaniards so many lives in the Santo Domingo war, when, on one occasion, 5,000 black troops barracked 5000 Spaniards in several works, and though at last the government forces penetrated a little way into the interior, they had from being constantly exposed to this kind of warfare, to return to the coast, but with greatly diminished numbers.

Minano, the Governor of Trinidad, has ordered all absent families to return, under penalty of imprisonment for disobedience of the order. Sequestration is the order of the day. In the jurisdiction of Seguia the property of about thirty individuals has been recently by the Government, and the same thing is being done in all parts of the island.

From the best accounts to be obtained, it would seem that those who, counting May morning 1500 men, 4500 insurgents in the district of Santiago de Cuba.

The insurgents are really moving in every direction. They have a considerable body of troops near Nuevitas, under Quesada. Principe Quesada, the general-in-chief, is organizing his forces as fast as possible, and the accounts which reach us from the latter point are in this particular highly interesting. It is said that there are several bodies of insurgent cavalry near the latter city, splendidly armed and equipped. These are all dressed in uniform, each man having a Spencer rifle, a pistol, and machete. There are at least calculation about 2,000 men in their files.

A great deal of suffering is reported in Puerto Principe on account of the scarcity of provisions, and it is said to be extremely difficult if not impossible for the government to provision the place. On the other hand, the insurgents get where they please, have immense numbers of cattle, and the with the fruits of the earth, will be sufficient for them even should the war continue for another year or longer. The same state of things exists throughout the eastern and Central Departments. The Spaniards, dead most of the towns, but are not allowed to go out to hunt up supplies only when in forces, and generally they meet with unseen enemies, who often inflict upon them serious losses.

The Vuelta Abajo remains tranquil, but the reason is plain: There the Cubans have no arms. The whole island is revolutionary there is no such feeling as trying to the contest, and the conduct of the Government in seizing the property of absentees, a proclamation Cubans here, will but not to the damage. Such a man of the means of supporting his family, and has lost heart in mood for compromise and submission.

A prominent Cuban, Rafael Larruza, has been condemned to die. His offences have been many. Larruza is an ardent revolutionist and was the first man put into the Morro Castle after the commencement of the war. This was because certain incriminatory documents were said to have been found in his possession. Ledsundi released him with others previous to his sailing for Spain. As soon as Dulce declared the liberty of the Press, Larruza started an organ called "El Demonio Republicano," the same night of the day on which the first number of the new paper made its appearance, Larruza was founded the Villanueva theatre riot, and there he was again arrested. It is asserted that, at the moment of arrest he did his pistol pointed at the head of a Spanish colonel. On the fatal morning when Leon said his comrade would be at the place of execution, it was said that Larruza spoke to Leon those words: "Remember your promise," which was understood to be that, Leon, should make a good fight before dying, and give shouts for Independence and Free Cuba. It is believed that it is on account of the last charge that the young man is to be executed. He is about thirty-five years of age, and is connected with the best families of the island. His mother (now, dead) was a niece of the great Havana merchant, Jose Mar a Morales.

To conclude: it may be safely said, that the Spaniards are somewhat down-hearted. Not so with the patriots. The latter have an abiding confidence in the justice and final triumph of their cause.

The New York Tribune's cable special, dated London, May 11, says the anti-Catholic steps have been taken for an alliance of offensive and defensive between England, France and Spain, against the United States. The rejection of the Alabama treaty, the tone of Mr. Sumner's speech, the alleged illiberalizing tendency of General Grant's administration, and the supposed connivance at expeditions from the United States against Cuba, being minde the pretext for a necessity for such alliance.

Political and Personal.

Creswell is laying himself open to the Democratic charges of villainy. He is turning out Democratic office-holders. A Maryland Democratic sheet complains that the Postmaster General is a thorough gleaner of conservative officials in that State. It says: "McCormick's reaper, which is covered all over with the sickles and stars, would leave twenty heads standing where Creswell leaves one."

The Providence Herald, Sprague's Democratic organ, says that Senator Sprague reached that city Saturday, and is ready for either counsel or fight, leaving his antagonist to choose.

A Southern traveller says the most loyal men, South are the ex-rebel soldiers. The enemies of the South are the Democratic newspapers. They sow the seeds of dissension broadcast. Assaults upon President Grant, upon Congress, and in too many cases upon the Northern people, as a body, are the daily food they supply to their long oppressed and misguided readers.

Col. Forney says that Atlanta, the heart of the Southern Confederacy is now the place of refuge for the Republicans who are driven away from those quarters in the interior where the white Unionists are still persecuted, and where the blacks are intimidated or subsidized.

The Chicago Times, good Democratic authority, recently had an editorial article gloating over the "probable death of Gen. Gerant," in which it predicts he will not live out his term, and doubts whether he will live to perform the Presidential functions a year.

The Washington correspondent of the Philadelphia Inquirer says that the recent Southern tourists, in an interview with President Grant, were unanimous in the opinion that the time had not come when Northern men can go down South to live, unless they go in colonies large enough to be independent of all but their own civil. They concur, also, in the belief that the day has not yet arrived for an indiscriminate removal of political disabilities, and that years will have to pass away before thousands of them will be restored to loyalty.

The Imperialist, a journal established in New York ostensibly to proclaim the weakness of republican institutions and the necessity of a monarchical form of government for this country, has reached its tenth number. Whether it is simply a hoax or is established to aid republicanism by making the bondholders, in whose interest it claims to be, odious, does not yet appear.

Without a Good Digestion

All other temporal blessings are comparatively valueless. The poor, pallid, unhappy dyspeptic, tried the powers of the medical profession in vain, and has given up in despair, is now restored to health and happiness by the use of Dr. J. H. Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup, Sea Weed Tonic and Mandrake Pills, which are the only medicines in the world that will act at the same time upon the three principal organs of digestion, and thus restore the healthy action of the whole system.

Perhaps HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS is the only unconditional exception to the above assertion. Possessing the power to change the secretions of the stomach, liver and bowels, it is unquestionably the most effectual remedy for dyspepsia in all its forms. It does not create an appetite by vitiating the digestive fluids, but by toning the stomach and bowels into healthy action, thereby enabling them to perform their functions without the aid of any stimulant. Try it, and you will be convinced that it is the best medicine for indigestion, biliousness, fever and ague, kidney complaints and nervousness ever offered to the public. For sale by druggists and dealers generally.

ROBERTS' BITTERS. Try the great remedy for the cure of nervousness, sleeplessness, want of appetite, dizziness, nervous headache, and all diseases arising from a disordered stomach, torpid liver or impure blood. Sold by druggists generally.

FROM WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, May 12.

The Secretary of the Treasury states that the purchases of Bonds under notice issued by the Assistant Treasurer at New York, were made in conformity to the act of 1862, and that it is not the design of the Secretary to put these bonds again upon the market, nor is it his expectation that they will in any form be re-issued. His object in the collection of the principal and interest of the public debt. Arrangements are being made in the Treasury Department to carry into execution the act of 1862, relative to the establishment of a sinking fund.

No information concerning an alliance against the United States has been received at the Spanish, French or English Legations.

The London telegram at first occasioned spiritual comment, but to-night nobody appears to attach full credit to the announcement.

The President and Secretary Boutwell were early informed of the contents of the dispatch, but apart from this they had no information.

The interview today between President Grant, General McClellan and Gov. Randolph, was in reference to matters connected with the Stevens floating battery.

Disastrous Conflagration of Steamboats.

CINCINNATI, May 12.

The most disastrous conflagration of steamboats that ever occurred in this city, raged this morning at the landing of the New Orleans and Memphis Packet Co's. The fire broke out in the after cabin of the Clifton and extended to the Westmoreland, Mollie Stand, Mary Elwin, Ghost, and if the Cheyenne and Darling, Now. The above boats were soon enveloped in flame. The hulls of the Mollie and Darling may be used again. The other boats will be a total loss. The fire originated in the chambermaid's room on the Clifton, by the upsetting of a coal oil lamp. Fourteen kegs of gunpowder on the Cheyenne exploded and scattered the flames to the Westmoreland. There were two hundred barrels of coal oil on the Cheyenne and 25 barrels on the Westmoreland.

The Mollie belonged to Williamson Ishern and Capt. Kenistan, she was valued at $8,000 and insured at $5000. The Westmoreland was owned by Capt. Byers and Rushwell, and ran on the New Orleans trade. She was valued at $15,000 and insured for $15,000. The estimated value of the cargo was $50,000. The Darling belonged to the Memphis Packet Co. She had just put off a valuable cargo of cotton, most of which was lost. The hull of the vessel was saved. She was valued at $25,000 and insured for $20,000.

There are rumors afloat that several lives were lost, but up to noon no names are reported. Total loss $1,250.

Municipal Election

PROVIDENCE, R. I., May 12.

The Municipal election occurred today. The candidates for Mayor were George L. Clarke, Rep. Thomas A. Doyle, Spraguite Rep., and Nicholas Van Slack, Dem. Last evening, Mr. Doyle published a letter withdrawing from the canvass, but about an hour before the polls closed this evening, his friends made a rally and put in about 1000 votes, bobtailed the election as the vote was light. The movement was a failure, however. George H. Clarke is elected Mayor by fourteen hundred and eighteen majority over all. The vote standing, Clarke, 3,007, Doyle, 1311, Vaughan, 835. The city council is mainly Republican. The anti-Spragueites are jubilant.

The Great Failure.

Mr. Edward A. Pollard, in his forthcoming "Secret History of the Confederacy," probes without flinching the unpleasant question, "who was responsible for the great failure, and holds the blame justly chargeable to the incompetence and mismanagement of Jefferson Davis." Mr. Davis, he says, had, during the greater part of his administration, a servile Congress, a Cabinet of dummies and a people devoted to his person; his authority was complete, his responsibility undivided. We copy from advance sheets a sketch of the character of the Confederate chieftain and an outline of Mr. Pollard's theory about the conduct of the war.

Jefferson Davis was not a great man. He lacked the essential requisites of such a character; he was merely a narrow-brained person possessed of much address, and some very agreeable literary accomplishments which dazzled vulgar criticism and betrayed the admiration of the populace. This notion, to the were, has been greatly resented by [illegible] and apologists of Mr. Davis, [illegible] very anxious to [illegible] with the mere [illegible] but such an association, [illegible] or legical. Hydrophobia—A Terrible Struggle with Death.

A Young man named William Goodwillie died a horrible death from the combined effects of hydrophobia and a Russian steam bath, in Chicago, Monday afternoon. The particulars are peculiarly distressing in character. About two months ago, while the deceased was at work, a small cur bit him on the fleshy part of the right hand between the knuckle of the thumb and forefinger. There was nothing in the appearance of the animal to excite suspicion or alarm.

The wound was a serious one, but Mr. Goodwillie did not take steps to expel the poison. Last week he worked very hard, especially on Friday and part of the following day. On Saturday he complained of pains in his bones and physical prostration. He dropped work and sat down, remarking that he was going to have small-pox or hydrophobia. He took it in a playful way, and tried to treat the matter as lightly as possible. He went home, subsequently, and lay down on the bed. The night passed quietly. The disease was gathering in force for its final onslaught. Sunday morning she awoke and partially dressed himself. He went to the washstand to wash his face. There was the hat of his family. He looked on the water and went mad.

He began to rave. Doctors were sent for. The pharmacopœia was ransacked for remedies. The doctors held a consultation. They told him he could not survive. He long and weary Sunday passed, and the patient grew worse. Toward night he grew so he was able to drink water. Finally the burning thirst that tormented him. He thought he was getting better. A morning approached the old horror of water returned, and he would drink no more. The slightest noise or the slightest sight of any fluid was the signal for a fearful struggle. Paroxysms came on, each succeeding one more violent than the preceding one. Delirium prevailed once he raved horribly. He attempted to imitate the bark of a dog. He would run down from his room. During intervals between the paroxysms he was lucid. The paroxysms came on more rapidly. He rushed at the doctors and the watchers with a chair. He was back to hot baths covered up so that he could not see the horrible water. His eyes were fierce, his cheeks inflamed, and his lower lip hung down, revealing his mouth open. The physicians in attendance by recommended the famous remedy of the Russian bath. He was placed in a hot bath and conveyed to the bath-room. The moment he entered the vapory atmosphere of the bath-house, his madness increased, and distending his mouth to its widest, he fiercely looked about him and endeavored to escape.

When the bath was ready a pail of cold water was placed on his head, and he was forcibly thrust into the air-tight room. The bathing room. The steam [illegible] the chamber to [illegible] the effect made [illegible] became furious [illegible]
